

I believe that any changes to existing ditital televison should not affect the existing units that consumers already have invested in. I have a HDTV with built in receiver and a General Instruments HDTV receiver for my C-Band satellite dish. I would strongly object to any changes done for copyright protection that would not allow me to continue to use those units.